A HEART IN HIS LEG.

Operation in a St. Leute Respital Upon a Patient Peopliarly Afflicted.

Dr. Marks, superintendent of the City hospital, cut a heart out of a man's leg recently. Instead of being necessary to the patient's existence, as hearts usually are, this organ was a very dangerous possession and was likely to end his life at any moment. The heart was almost as large as the one usually found inside a man's ribs and beat in very much the same manner. It was situated upon the inside of the right leg, four or five inches inside of the right leg, four or five inches above the latter, and was more tender than the ball of the owner's eye.

Charles Gentry, a laborer, was the owner of this very remarkable organ. To the surgeons the phenomenon is called a traumatic ancurism of the femoral artery. This artery is the big blood feeding pe that runs from the heart down brough the body and leg, furnishing life o the different parts of the anatomy as t goes. About two months ago Gentry was struck upon the leg just over the artery by a shaft of a piece of machinery.
The inner wall of the artery was burst, and the big pipe began to bulge out at this point. The outer wall, or coat of the artery, luckily stretched and held the blood, or Gentry would have bled to death

n no time.

The artery kept on swelling with ev ery pulsation of the patient's heart. From the size of a hazelant the bulge grew and grew until it was larger than man's fist. How the artery managed o stand it without bursting was a matter for wonder even to the surgeons. The least touch given to the skin over the swelling caused Gentry horrible pain, and he was obliged to keep very still lest any sudden movement or contact would brenk it and by the hemorrhage bring on leath. The ancurism could be seen to beat to all intents and purposes like any other heart. If one brought his ear close to it, he could hear a constantly repeated blowing or breathing sound coming from beneath the skin. This noise was caused by the vacant air space around the muscles aside. The patient was laid upon the operating table and placed under the influence of chloroform. A sharp knife laid the issues aside and exposed the femoral artery with its apple shaped bulb. The ar-tery was then tied or ligated two inches above and two inches below the swelling and the big bulb cut open. Nearly a pint of blood gusied forth, and then there was no heart left. The slit artery was then sewed together with fine silk threads previously soaked in antiseptic solution and left to heal .- St. Louis Globe-Demo-

ITALY'S CRISIS.

Public Men Say It Is the Most Dangeron

Since the Existence of the Lingdom. The news from Italy this week has seen each day worse than the last. Signor Villari, many times a cabinet minister and a powerful leader, publishes a remarkable article in Rome appealing to the king to save the country from the most dangerous crisis since the existence of the kingdom by proclaiming a dictatorship which shall put an end to powerless parliamentarism. Nothing else, he declares, will aver the triumph of revo-Intionary socialism which will destroy existing institutions. The article has won the approval of many conservative persons, and even the selection of a dicator is being discussed. He would be Signor Crispi or some general. Crispi is quoted as saying to his friends that his bour is not yet come, but when an al is made he will be rendy.

The government dare not reduce the army for domestic as well as international reasons. The situation in Sicily is as threatening as ever, and there is no telling at what moment the large force now there will be required to suppress a rebellion at home. The forces are being prepared for such an emergency, but there are grave doubts whether any body of troops would obey an order to fire upon their rebellious countrymen. The government is undoubtedly cherishing strong hopes of the naval co-operation of Great Britain in any emergency. New York Sun's European Letter.

Influence of Manchester Canal.

A London correspondent says: It is evident that the Manchester Ship canal, which will open on Jan. 1, will obtain a large share of its business from cotton carrying steamers. The managers of the canal say that several steamers have already engaged to bring cotton from New Orleans and Galveston to Manchester direct, and 323 spinners, owning more than 20,000,000 spindles and consuming about 350,000 tons of raw cotton yearly, have signed a statement booming the new route. They pledge themselves to give preference, when larging to assise, to cotton shipped direct, and when buying on spot to cotton imported direct and stored in Manchester.

Edison's English patents on incandescent lamps expired on the 10th iffst., and hereafter their manufacture and sale will be free. What this means to the people will be understood when it is known that there are more of such lamps in use in London alone than in New York, Philadelphia, Buffalo and Wash-ington taken together. — London Ex-
